

My loveliest A,

I'm so very thankful for you, your sweetheart. I appreciate your support and care for me, something I never would have imagined. You are the foundation of my life. I am grateful that you are in my life and that we get to spend every moment together. I love you so much.

I used to be afraid of love because I didn't know if I would ever find the kind of love I had imagined. However, you entered my life and taught me the true meaning of love. Your sincere affection has dispelled all of my uncertainties. It is my goal that we will be able to spend eternity together once this world ends.

Despite any mistakes we may have made, I can't help but feel happy as I get ready to pray. I thank Allah for the happiness you have brought into my life and I pray that He would pardon us. Your actions, no matter how big or small, have left a lasting impression on me.

I appreciate everything about you, including your character, personality, and the way you take care of our connection. I also adore the way your voice sounds, the way your eyes glitter, the way your lips are warm, the way your face looks beautiful, and the way your hair is soft. I treasure the kindness with which you have showered me with presents, such as the flowers that currently garnish my phone cover.

I want you to know that you have my undying support, just as I have yours. I want you to know that even though I'm hesitant to express my emotions, you are constantly in my thoughts. I'm concerned about you and want to know if you've had enough water or food. Like the flowers you give me, your care melts my heart.

I am grateful for your affection and concern for me, and I hope that, God willing, our future will be filled with happiness and ease. I'm grateful for everything, my darling. I adore you so much.

Always yours,

I <3
